Carilion, VTCSOM and JCHS Research Day: Plan to attend April 10th 2018!

Research Day is intended to highlight the research efforts of all Carilion personnel. Abstracts are due by March 2, 2018 5:00pm. For more information, click here. See Dr. Anita Kablinger’s presentation on “Presenting Your Research” from the OCPD Research Series as a great resource for tips on how to get started on your poster or presentation for the day by clicking here!

Dean’s Forum – Register Now!

Join us for our upcoming Dean’s Forum on Hot Topics & Challenges in Medical Education! This session, “Interpreting and Responding to Learner Feedback” led by Kim Filer PhD (Director of Center for Instructional Development and Educational Research and Assistant Provost for Teaching and Learning, Virginia Tech) will guide participants to identify trends in evaluations that can inform teaching, determine which feedback warrants pedagogical and other changes, define the difference between a few bad evaluations and a whole class perception, and develop a template of advice or a decision tree (diagnostic approach) to responding to feedback. Click here to register for 1 of 3 opportunities to attend.

Tues, April 17, 2018 5:30pm-6:30pm / Wed, April 18, 2018 7am – 8am / Wed, April 18, 2018 12-1pm

CIDER Conference Highlight: Check out TEACH Members Representin’!

This year, several TEACH members traveled to Blacksburg to attend the 10th Annual Conference on Higher Education Pedagogy. The Virginia Tech Center for Teaching and Learning hosts this yearly conference to showcase higher education teaching excellence and scholarship of teaching and learning. Several members of our TEACH community got the opportunity to showcase their pedagogical practice and research to an international community. This year’s conference proved to be an exciting opportunity for learning and networking. To see what our TEACH members were busy sharing, click here.

Technology Tidbit: Check out these technology tools to enhance your teaching!

Over the last 6-months we have brought brief, bite-sized teaching technology lessons to the BIC 2 (Block Integration Committee) meetings. Using the microlearning strategy, we provided faculty with brief 10-minute instruction on a new teaching technology each week, followed by weekly email tips to reinforce concepts and ease implementation. This successful pilot has encouraged us to share these teaching technology resources with the larger learning community in order to foster the inclusion of teaching technology to promote active learning within our teaching. We encourage you to take a look at the presentations to see if there is a teaching technology that you would be interested in integrating into your next teaching (link to microlearning presentations)!

Make It Stick: Win Your Own Copy!

In preparation for this year’s Education Day with Dr. Henry Roediger, we will be raffling off copies of his well known book “Make It Stick” to attendees at TEACH events. Join us in the coming months for your opportunity to win!
